Utah Wing
Encampment

Well Done! It's been a tough week, but you have had a fantastic experience; one that you will remember for years. As you return to your home squadrons, stand tall. You have earned the respect of all your peers.

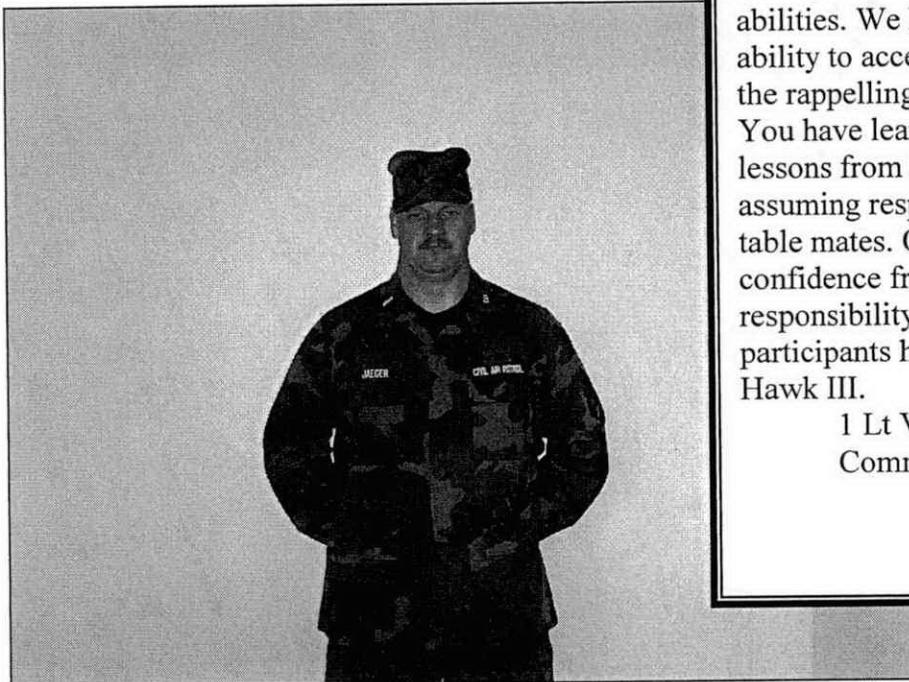

Now you are qualified to attend National CAP activities. Seek them out. Decide what you want to do, and go for it. The CAP cadet program can be an absolute blast. Remember, it's all good.

Major John Carlson
Encampment Commander

Desert Hawk III has taken cadets from the blind obedience phase to a level of trust and confidence in their abilities. We have challenged your ability to accept longer head-on with the rappelling tower and jump tower. You have learned various leadership lessons from impromptu speech, to assuming responsibility for your table mates. Our staff has grown in confidence from the sheer responsibility of command. All participants have grown from Desert Hawk III.

Colonel Russ Chazell, Utah Wing Commander and Major John Carlson, Desert Hawk III Commander, honoring Colonel Woody Walton, a CAP founding member.

Congratulations to Bravo Flight, Honor Flight of the Desert Hawk Encampment.

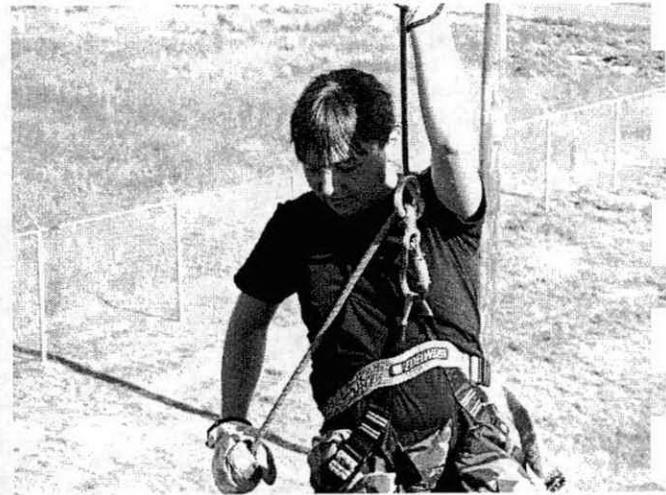

Special thanks to 2d Lt Berend Loss, Mess Ops, and cadet staff for keeping up camp energy and morale.

Rappel Tower

C/ MSgt Abbott starts his descent down the 45 foot wall to the shredded rubber bottom below

C/ Morriss looks a little nervous on her way down the freefall edge.

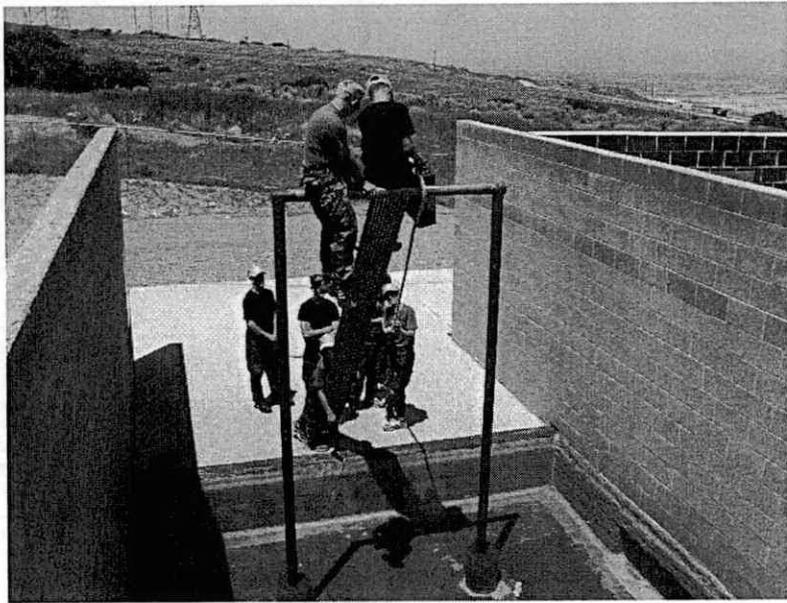

C/ 1Lt. Yates smiles on his way down!!

C/ A1C Griffiths prepares to freefall down the repel tower.

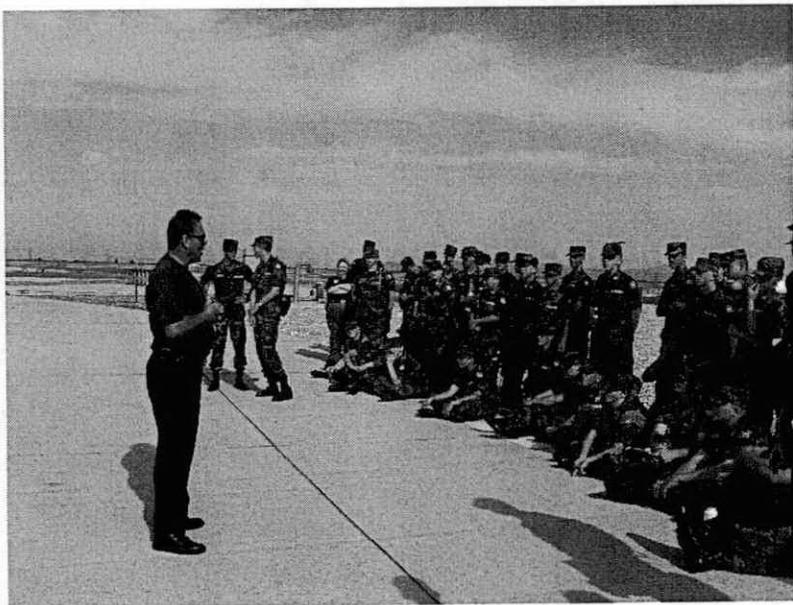

Leadership Reaction Course

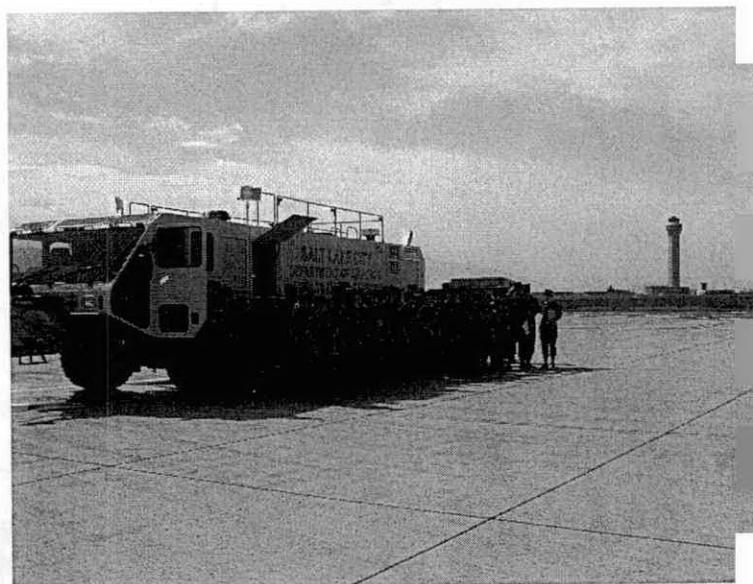

Cadets battle water and gravity at the Leadership Reaction Course. Each obstacle led to some creative teamwork as seen in these pictures!

The Burn Pit

Airport fire personnel briefed cadets on the airport fire operations. Briefing included a live burn demonstration with the airport fire department.

Fire Arms Training Simulator

C/2d Lt Milne and C/TSgt Brown fire away with their M-16 simulations. Despite the fact that they were not real, the weapons provided plenty of recoil.

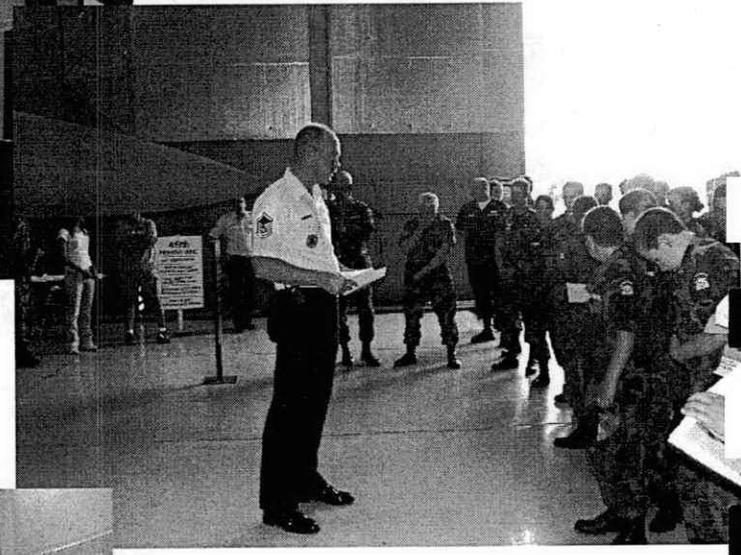

Cadets were given the opportunity to shoot in several different scenarios. At left, cadets get ready....aim....FIRE!

Hill Air Force Base

C/Amn Humerick gets to test out the type of G-suit that is used by fighter pilots in the 419th Fighter Wing.

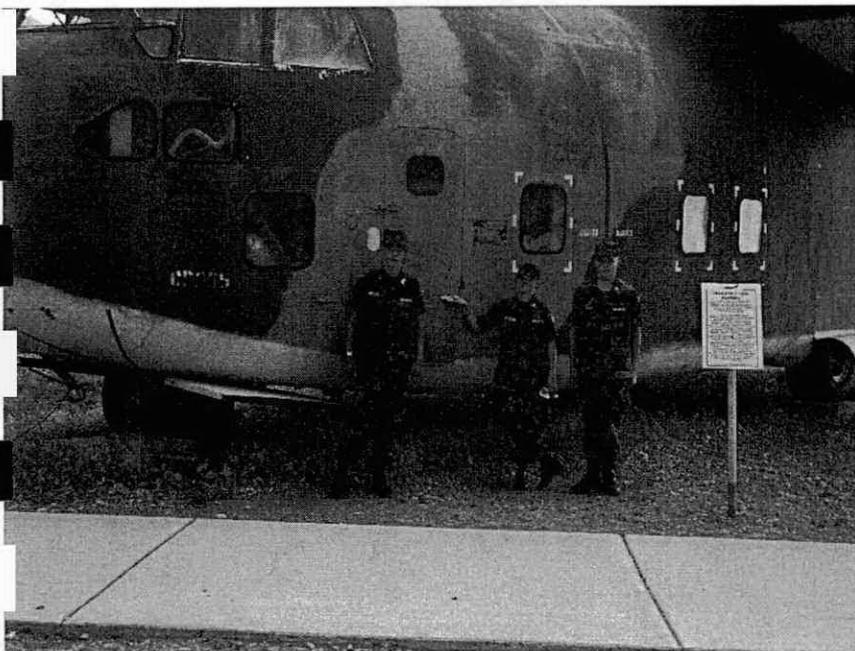

The line to see the inside of an F-16 was long but well worth the wait. The 419th Fighter Wing at Hill Air Force Base is a reservist wing that flies F-16s.

Hill Air Force Base

Chow, Air Force style! All cadets know that this is the best food found at any encampment. Above, Alpha Flight heads to lunch on base.
